CREATIVE ECONOMY, FILM, MEDIA & ENTERTAINMENT™

CREATIVE ECONOMY, FILM, MEDIA & ENTERTAINMENT™

“Who Owns the Story, Owns the Influence. Who Owns the Influence, Owns the Future.”

The Creative Economy, Film, Media & Entertainment Stage™ explores one of the fastest-growing and most influential sectors of the global economy, where storytelling, intellectual property, technology, culture, and creativity are increasingly shaping economic growth, investment flows, consumer behaviour, and societal influence.

Aligned with the strategic priorities of EmpowaWomen™, this platform positions women not only as creators and participants, but as owners, investors, executives, producers, broadcasters, platform builders, and industry architects driving the future of Africa’s creative and cultural economy.

As global demand for authentic African stories, content, talent, and cultural exports continues to accelerate, unprecedented opportunities are emerging for women to build scalable enterprises, unlock new revenue streams, commercialise intellectual property, access investment, and influence global narratives at scale.

The stage convenes leading female CXOs, media executives, filmmakers, broadcasters, producers, publishers, investors, entrepreneurs, technology innovators, content creators, policymakers, and cultural leaders shaping the future of Africa’s creative industries.

Why This Matters

The next generation of economic power will not be defined solely by ownership of resources, infrastructure, or financial capital. It will increasingly be shaped by ownership of ideas, intellectual property, audiences, platforms, narratives, and cultural influence.

The creative economy has emerged as a significant driver of job creation, innovation, entrepreneurship, exports, tourism, investment attraction, and national competitiveness. For women leaders, entrepreneurs, and innovators, it presents a powerful pathway to wealth creation, business growth, global visibility, and long-term economic influence.

The EmpowWomen Advantage

The Creative Economy, Film, Media & Entertainment Stage™ serves as a strategic marketplace of ideas, influence, capital, partnerships, and opportunity.

It is designed for women who are not simply seeking a seat at the table, but who are building studios, launching platforms, scaling media enterprises, owning intellectual property, attracting investment, shaping culture, and influencing the future.

This is where Africa's next generation of female media owners, filmmakers, broadcasters, producers, investors, creators, and cultural powerhouses converge to transform creativity into commercial value, influence into impact, and storytelling into lasting economic power.
